Big City Postmen Remain On Strike

Nixon Considering Troops?

From Associated Press
The nation's mail tie-up remained in a state of flux today as President Nixon pondered whether to take emergency measures to move the letters and packages piling up because of a near nationwide postal strike.

Although many postal workers in small cities voted Sunday to return to work, an Associated Press survey showed striking workers in most major metropolitan areas voted to continue the walkout in support of demands for a 40 per cent pay increase.

Detroit's carriers were almost unanimous Sunday night in voting to remain on strike. Two other Michigan cities — Adrian and Monroe — voted to join the strike, while workers in East Lansing and Battle Creek decided to return to work.

Meanwhile, House Minority Leader Gerald Ford of Michigan advocated the use of negotiation and legislation rather than calling out federal troops as the best solution. He said he doubted the armed forces "are adequately trained for the task of handling the mail."

Postal union chief James Rademacher, who has teamed with the administration since Friday in urging the workers to return, today came up with a new threat to the government.

Rademacher, speaking on NBC's "Today Show," called for a nationwide strike of all AFL-CIO workers if the mailmen's dispute isn't settled within the five-day limit set in Friday's agreement.

Nixon, who kept abreast of the situation over the weekend in his special quarters in the Executive Office Building, had threatened to take emergency action today if a majority of workers remained off the job.

The threat was interpreted to mean Nixon would call in troops to handle the mails and officials spent Sunday preparing plans

They Walk Routes, Not Picket Line

Members of National Association of Letter Carriers at the Benton Harbor post office are not joining in the wildcat strike, according to Don P. Mitchell, president of branch 560 of the NALC.

Mitchell said the Benton Harbor branch is abiding by the decision of James H. Rademacher, national president of the NALC. Rademacher Friday imposed a five-day deadline for talks on the postal strike issue, saying a national strike then would be called if there is no settlement.

Mitchell's statement said: "Our members are dedicated carriers and plan on a lifetime of service to their community. They have the welfare of the community at heart. Knowing that a strike will disrupt the economy of the area, they are for using National Guard and regular Army units to run the post offices.

Both the administration and Congress had said negotiations would not begin on strikers' demands for more money until most services were restored.

Some delivery embargoes were lifted in the East and Midwest after workers returned to their posts.

"In a large number of eastern metropolitan centers, we now have the normal, full complement of clerks processing the backlog mail, and city carriers in the union locals have voted to return to work on Monday for their normally scheduled work hours," Postmaster General Winton M. Blount said late Sunday.

Leaders of seven postal unions reaffirmed Sunday their request that postal workers end their walkout so discussions on the issues could begin. They made the statement after meeting for more than an hour with Labor Secretary George Shultz.

Rademacher also warned union locals that "public wrath shall replace support" if they continue their walkout beyond Nixon's Monday deadline.

Many locals Sunday agreed to return to work for only five days, depending on the progress of the negotiations.

In New York City, a spokesman for the post office's regional director said today reports from city post offices indicated "the work stoppage is still on." He said only 14 of 208 clerks and one of 182 carriers

Berrien Is Focal Point

Welfare Claims
Soar 219%
In 7 Years

LANSING — A major probe of the Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) program and other state social welfare efforts will be launched Tuesday, with Berrien county as the main focal point, according to State Senator Charles Zollar (R-Benton Harbor).

Investigators for the state auditor general's department and the Senate appropriations committee will begin a thorough examination of Berrien and several other counties whose records have indicated "an alarming increase" in ADC payments, he said. He said there are indications of "loosely enforced" social welfare programs.

Zollar, who touched off a telling probe of state Medicaid payments last year, said Berrien county was selected as "our most immediate concern" because of a skyrocketing increase in the county's ADC load.

UP 219 PER CENT
"We have noted an increase in ADC payments of some 219 per cent in the past seven years," said the chairman of the Senate appropriations committee.

"In dollars and cents, this means we spent some $2,663,490 in 1969 for Berrien county ADC payments, as opposed to an expenditure of only $1,146,000 in 1961. There were only 785 ADC families in the county seven years ago; in 1968 there were 1,608."

Zollar did not identify the other counties where the probe is to go.

At the same time, the Benton Harbor senator announced his intention to introduce legislation this week to prohibit the sale of substandard homes to welfare recipients.

"In my preliminary investigation I have found indications of many sales of substandard homes to ADC recipients who are unable to bring the houses up to standard because of a lack of sufficient funds for upgrading. The bill I plan to introduce this week will aid in reducing the problems of costly substandard housing deterioration."

On the matter of welfare, Zollar said the cost of social services is one of the largest expenditures in the state's budget. This year the state will spend $853 million for public assistance.

HUGE INFLUX
He placed part of the blame for the sharp increase in ADC recipients on the U.S. Supreme

Hope Fading For Little Girls

Wendy, Peggy Vanish From Beach In Florida

POMPAÑO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Almost three months ago, two little girls went looking for ice cream and never came back.

Peggy Rahn was 9 and had her own room. It stands just as she left it. Strewn across the double bed are an Easter rabbit with a frilly skirt, a purple porcupine, two baby dolls and a pajama bag.

A small organ stands against one wall with a closed lesson book propped on its music stand.

CAN'T CLEAN ROOM

"I haven't even dusted," Cecile Rahn apologized when she showed her daughter's room. "I've come in here to clean up several times, but . . ."

"I still jump every time the phone rings. I still hope they're alive. One day you're up and the next day you're down."

Three blocks away, Kay Stevenson kept the Christmas tree up until the end of January hoping 8-year-old Wendy would come home.

Some of Wendy's presents arrived late—a week after she disappeared Dec. 29.

New dresses hang in Wendy's bedroom closet, a slumber bag is on a chest and a doll case stands on the floor.

A fat blue piggy bank stands on her dresser, its round belly heavy with coins.

"I put her allowance in every week," Mrs. Stevenson says. "When she was home I'd usually give her about 35 cents and put 15 cents away for her."

A middle-aged neighbor took Peggy to the beach and Wendy went with a 25-year-old uncle. The girls met at the beach by accident and wandered away together to buy ice cream.

Mrs. Rahn watched the car drive off to the beach with Peggy.

"I remember seeing her little blonde head through a window," Mrs. Rahn says. "I had a sudden impulse to go after her. It's funny—I've never told that to anyone else. But I had the feeling I should go after her. It makes you wonder if there's such a thing as premonitions."

"Some days I think they drowned and some days I don't," Mrs. Stevenson says.

South Haven School Will Remain Open

SOUTH HAVEN—Pledges and contributions to ease a financial deficit will allow the St. Basil elementary school to remain open for the 1970-71 academic year, the parish council decided Sunday.

The council had forecast a $35,000 deficit for the current and 1970-71 school years and had placed the decision about closing the school with parishioners. The council had set an April 1 deadline for making a decision.

"We are gratified by the response of the congregation," said parish council president Ray Holden. "We are confident that the pledges will allow us to operate through the next school year."

The elementary school has approximately 200 students in grades one through eight. The council had forecast a $15,000 deficit for the current year and expenses beyond income of $20,000 for 1970-71.

Draft Quota Is 1,709 For April

LANSING (AP) — State selective service headquarters today ordered local draft boards to deliver 1,709 men for induction into the army during April.

The quotas for area counties were, Allegan, 23; Berrien, 23; Cass, 10; and Van Buren 10.

Parent Pressure Causes Suicides

Drugs Not Usually Tied To Youth Despair

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The suicide of a college youth is typically not an impulsive act by "some kid on a drug trip" or under campus pressure, but the result of years of accumulating unhappiness, says the co-conductor of a two-year study.

"It's a very serious thing for a human being to decide to dispose of himself, and almost invariably we found that it takes at least a fourth of a lifetime for it to happen to an intelligent youngster."

Dr. Michael L. Peek told the national convention of the American Orthopsychiatric Association Sunday.

The University of Southern California Medical School psychology professor, a consultant with the Los Angeles Suicide Prevention Center, made a preliminary report on a 1967-69 study he did with Dr. Albert Schrut on a grant from the Research Foundation of the National Association for Mental Health.

He said they assessed suicides and suicidal behavior at 52 Southern California colleges with about 300,000 students, representing about 5 per cent of all college students in the United States.

"Almost universally, we learned that youthful suicide is the result of a chronic condition that builds up from an early age, with a strong element of parental influence involved," he said later in an interview.

"The impression that a disturbed young person had been on LSD or getting bad grades

Fun And Games

For LMC Bosses

The Lake Michigan College board went all out on fringe benefits for four of the school's upper echelon this season.

The board very generously voted to pay the expenses of President Lehman, Vice President Korschuh, and two trustees, Earl Place and Dr. Bernard Radde, to the American Association of Junior Colleges' annual convention.

The convention was staged in Hawaii.

Preliminary figures indicate the jaunt to the Island Paradise will cost $2,640 of the taxpayers' dough.

Southwestern Michigan College over in Cass county sent its president, Stanley Hergenroeder, expense free. Dr. Fred Mathews, the SMC Board president, went along for the joy ride from his own pocket.

Incidentally he told one of our reporters that he considered it a bit sticky for the Association to name Hawaii as the watering place for visiting firemen on public funds.

Conventions supposedly do serve some purpose other than giving the delegates a chance to shed their hearthside worries briefly.

So we can see the justification in sending Lehman or Korschuh, but not both of them.

Place and Radde toil for the love of advancing higher education, but jaunting them on the school's budget reminds one of that World War II question, "Is this trip necessary?"

No doubt the LMC faculty has filed last week's story about their sojourn to the land of pineapples and hula girls for ready reference when the next contract negotiations begin.

LMC takes one of the many bills described in the reader's property tax bill.

For the fun of it the reader might dig out the last statement from his city or township treasurer and calculate what he might have contributed to the foursome's socialability.

It might not amount to more than a couple of postcards and their stamps, but how many readers received even that much from our joyriding educators?

High Ranking Democrat

Supports Agnew

Last week Martin Hauan, the public relations director for the 1968 Democratic convention at Chicago, gave a hearty seconding to Spiro Agnew's contention that certain gentry in the news media should mend their ways.

The Vice President and the television network chieftains have been axing one another for months.

Agnew opened up the vendetta at a G.O.P. fund raising speech in Atlanta where he accused the TV networks of shading their news coverage.

Though he subsequently leveled his guns against the news media in all form, his largest shot has been reserved for the electronic carriers.

As a consequence the networks have exchanged Mayor Daley for him as Enemy No. 1.

Hauan pulled no punches in an interview on the convention.

"What the TV networks foisted upon the American public during the Democratic convention may be the greatest journalistic fraud of the century. It was a bigger fake than the 64,000 Dollar Question," he says.

The networks, he continued, were out to get Daley and President Johnson.

The "typewriter press" and most individual radio or TV stations, he added, tried to present a balanced picture of that turbulent August week.

The network masterminds, continued Hauan, played an opposite game. "Their executives told us, in effect, do it our way or we'll gut you. They phrased it more politely, but that's what they did."

By way of icing the cake, Hauan told the reporters that key supporters of Bobby Kennedy and Eugene McCarthy slid the banana peel under Humphrey by withholding their support for the Democratic nominee just long enough for Nixon to defeat him.

Hauan described the Kennedy and McCarthy agents as "frustrated beyond endurance."

Hauan's attack while not intended to give aid and comfort to a political adding machine evidence backing up Agnew.

The Democratic leader is talking about a backlash effect.

The television networks tried vainly to have the Democrats switch their convention site from Chicago to Miami which was the Republican choice.

Moving the equipment and personnel from Miami to Chicago was a terrific expense which the TV people knew would kill the joy in whatever sponsorship could be sold for the Chicago meeting.

Daley's refusal to yield on the question made him a target for the television people and this attitude carried on into the convention coverage itself.

This column remarked at the time that the site wrangle might easily stir the Democratic leaders into the same mutterings that Nixon threw at the entire news media following his 1960 loss to John F. Kennedy.

The difference in Agnew's thesis is that the TV bigwigs have decided as a policy matter to focus attention on some news phases and to downplay others.

The counter charge shot against Agnew is that he is trying to intimidate the news media into putting a favorable light upon whatever emanates from the White House.

Our feeling all along has been and still remains that the truth lies somewhere between those extremes.

Some public figures are thinner skinned than others. Some come on stronger than others.

It is not the media's function to pron up the weak, nor to dress up that which is dull.

Neither, however, is it the media's function to go off half-cocked on issues or personalities or to continue with unbalanced editorial policies or personnel once the deficiency is apparent.

Hauan puts the finger on a sorry lapse from this journalistic balance and Agnew tends to belabor a point beyond its true significance.

Computerized

Travel

A rapidly growing new type of computer operation, reservations networks, threatens to take all the fun out of traveling. At least four nationwide firms are now in the business of keeping track of hotel and motel rooms and rental cars by central computer.

Using their facilities it is possible to make reservations just about anywhere in the country for both rooms and cars.

Thus a motorist can drive from one coast to the other without any worries about where he is going to sleep that night; and he will be missing much of the fun.

Motorists who never make any plans until it is time to stop see some of the most interesting country and meet some of the most interesting people. Occasionally, they even find a place to sleep.

HER BOY NEEDS LONG HAIR
—1, as the mother of one of the boys who was "excused" from St. Joseph high school, because of long hair, wish to state that no student under any circumstance concerning a tiny infraction of rules as hair length, be denied the right to attend classes, even for one day. This in my estimation, should be first and foremost in the educators' minds.

Rather they spend precious time that could be otherwise utilized in a more constructive way by sneaking round measuring the hair length, whether it goes over a turtle neck, touches a shirt collar, even go as far as suggesting scoop necklines.

Sounds stupid, and ridiculous, doesn't it? Nevertheless, this came up on a recent telephone conversation over the same controversy.

I firmly believe in discipline, but the same must be applicable to all. This, however, does not seem to be the case in my many, crushing experiences in various departments of the school. Which, I must admit, will forever leave etched in my mind, how unfairly rules and dress codes are carried out.

My son is in a Rock and Roll band where long hair is an asset, almost a necessity. The length is by no means a distraction to other students.

I'm proud of St. Joseph high school, but do not approve of everything they stand for. We are all human and capable of fallibility, each and every one of us, including the mentors, and on up the line. Each day keeps one in wonderment, like what accusation will come up next.

Joan Crawford is one movie queen who hasn't abdicated. She is still active in the world of entertainment and business and her personality and drive stamp her activities with her own special mark.

A veteran of more than 80 movies, she became a star in the days of the silent as the epitome of "flaming youth" in the Charleston age. Since that time she has acted and lived up to the image of her fans while, at the same time, serving as the ambassador for a number of business firms.

She began her rags-to-movie riches rise amid a series of setbacks which failed to dent her determination, adaptability and realization that glamour and artistic distinction pay their costs in discipline.

She was born Lucille LeSueur in 1908 in San Antonio, Texas. Her parents were divorced before her birth and soon afterward her mother married Henry Cassin, owner of a vaudeville theater in Lawton, Okla. There Lucille, or Billie as she was then called, spent the first eight years of her life.

The family moved to Kansas City, Mo., about 1916 and her mother and stepfather separated the following year. She finished high school and attended Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., as a working student.

While dancing in a chorus line in Detroit, she was spotted by producer J. J. Shubert, who picked her to dance on Broadway. Her Joan Crawford name came from a movie magazine prize contest. At first she disliked it, but learned to love it.

From Charleston dancer to movie queen to actress—she won an Oscar for "Mildred Pierce"—to official hostess and board member of the Pepsi-Cola company, Joan Crawford has retained her regal touch to the delight of her fans and friends.

DR. COLEMAN

..And Speaking Of Your Health

My wife has been told that she will give birth to our child by Caesarean operation. We are not as worried about it as we are confused. Will you enlighten us?

Mr. T. R., Rhode Island

Dear Mr. R.: About one child in every fifty normal deliveries is born by Caesarean operation. This method is obviously named after Caesar, who was supposedly born in this manner.

There are a number of reasons why a child is chosen to be through an incision in the lower part of the abdominal wall. The most common is some anatomical abnormality of the pelvic bones of the mother. Only occasionally is the child so large that it cannot pass through the normal vaginal birth canal.

If the surgeon believes that the life of the child or mother is threatened by a normal delivery he may suggest a Caesarean section. The decision to do this is made after very careful consideration, and usually after consultation with another doctor.

The excellent surgical techniques and the safety of anesthesia, coupled with use of antibiotics, add great safety for the life and health of the mother and the child during such surgery.

I must interject an additional thought, namely that your confusion exists only because you did not ask your own doctor to adequately explain the reason for this operation.

My new business will take me to a high, dry climate. Is this safe for one who had a mild heart attack ten years ago, at the age of 45?

Mr. K. L., New Jersey

Dear Mr. L.: Most people adjust very quickly to changes in altitude when they move to new climates. Some people take a longer time to make that adjustment. When one has been completely free of symptoms for such a long time it can be safely assumed that your heart is virtually normal. Indulging as you do in all activities, at work and at play, substantiates this.

Nevertheless, I would suggest a complete reevaluation of your general health before you move to the higher altitude. Frequently doctors suggest that people try a new altitude for a while before making a final decision to live there. By doing so, you can learn more about the climate and how well you can adjust to it.

A slow adjustment period is a safe way for your body to make the transition.

Can a young boy have both male and female sex hormones? Is this unusual and can it affect him in later life?

Mrs. E. K., Georgia

Dear Mrs. K.: All boys and girls have within them female sex hormones (estrogens) and male sex hormones (androgens). As the boy advances through puberty there is a decrease in the female sex hormones. Similarly, as the girl passes through puberty, there is a decrease in the male sex hormones.

The correct balance between these hormones is established in adolescence. You need not have concern about this problem, but if you need added assurance, discuss it freely with your own doctor.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH: Emotional exhaustion needs as much rest as does physical fatigue.

The bidding:

Opening lead — three of diamonds.

This deal occurred in the match between France and Italy in the 1963 world championship and resulted in an enormous gain for the French team.

At the first table, with Pabisti and D'Alleio North - South for Italy against Ghestem and Bacherich for France, the bidding went as shown. Pabisti's two club opening was artificial and showed a three-suited hand. Two spades was natural, and North's three clubs showed good spade support and five clubs.

When D'Alleio now leaped to game in spades, Bacherich unexpectedly got into the act by bidding four notrump. This showed support for the unbid suits, and when East responded five hearts, South doubled.

D'Alleio led his singleton diamond and Ghestem had no trouble scoring 850 points. He won with the ace, took three rounds of trumps, established dummy's diamonds, and eventually lost two tricks. Had D'Alleio led a spade the contract would inevitably have gone down.

At the second table, with Theron - Desrousseaux North - South for France and Garozzo - Chiaradia East - West for Italy, the bidding went:

North East South West
1 ♣ 1 ♥ 1 ♠ 2 ♦
4 ♣ Pass Pass 5 ♣
Pass Pass 5 ♦ Dbl

Again the French declarer made the doubled contract. Desrousseaux ruffed the ace of hearts lead in dummy, played a low diamond which was won by West, ruffed the heart continuation in dummy with the jack, played the A-9 of trumps and took the marked finesse, and eventually lost a club trick to duplicate his teammates' score of plus 850.

So the French team made a game with the East - West cards as well as with the North - South cards, but, despite their 1,700 point gain on the deal, they eventually lost the match to the Italians.

I'd bring them home, and at 10:00 a.m. I'd hitch the old horse up again, and take my Baptist grandparents to

The audience responded heartily, and the local boss finally told Huey admiringly, "You've been holding out on us. We didn't know you had any Catholic grandparents."

"Don't be a damn fool," replied Huey. "We didn't even have a horse!"

STUDENTS TELL WHAT IS 'BUGGING' THEM

Two Commissioners Endorse Tax Levy

Candidates In BH Election

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of two parts on candidates in the Benton Harbor municipal election.

Two veteran Benton Harbor city commissioners, involved in a three-way race for re-election in the city April 6 election, have endorsed passage of the proposed four-mill property tax increase levy at the same time. The challenger in the contest for the two commissioner-at-large positions gave support to the measure only if it is proven necessary.

The candidates are: incumbents Edward R. Merrill, 46, of 737 Pearl street, F. Joseph Flaugh, 66, of 176 Hastings avenue, and Clarence T. Richards Jr., 28, of 1041 Colfax avenue.

Good Year For Credit Union

Municipal Workers Hear Reports

The Twin Cities Municipal Federal Credit Union reported gains in all phases of activity at its annual meeting Friday at Holiday Inn of Benton Harbor.

President Wilma Hummel said there was 17.4 per cent increase in membership during 1969 to a total of 1,154 for the credit union that serves municipal employees and their families in Berrien county.

Total assets climbed to $844,089, up 23 per cent; loans to members also climbed 23 per cent to $594,086. The board of directors voted a 5 per cent dividend.

The report of Treasurer Fred Peppel showed 610 loans were made during the year compared to 562 in 1968. Total amount loaned to members since organization is $3,616,681.

Board members re-elected were Wilma Hummel, Jack Schweitzer and Edna Rademacher for three-year terms; Joyce Winebrenner two years.

Louise Merrill was re-elected to the credit committee for two years.

Speakers at the meeting were Bob Racine, Credit Union league representative and Bob Heath.

Police Car Pelted By Bottles, Stones

Benton Harbor police arrested two youths Saturday night after a group threw bottles and stones at a squad car parked in the 600 block of East Vineyard street.

Police said the group began kicking the squad car and yelling verbal abuse at a patrolman when he attempted to break up a fist fight. The patrolman, John Baldwin, had gone to answer a complaint at a Vineyard street address.

Baldwin said two other officers, called to the scene to assist, were backed up against the back of their patrol car by the group of youths who were Merrill and Flaugh endorsed the proposal and urged voters to vote for it. But they said they didn't like boosting taxes. They said the funds were needed to avoid heavy cuts in police and fire department operations. Each said he would oppose any move to close the southside fire station.

Closing of the station has been discussed informally as one possible means of cutting back costs.

Richards said he could support a "reasonable" property tax boost if proven necessary. But he doubted that all other possible remedies had been pursued fully.

The commissioner-at-large race is one of two contests for city commission offices in the April regular election. The other is between James Toliver and Daniel Chapman for the Third Ward seat being vacated by commissioner Rex Sheeley.

Also on the ballot will be candidates for the city ward supervisor positions and the Fourth Ward commission seat where Charles Gray is seeking re-election unopposed.

The tax measure was placed on the ballot by the city commission to raise an estimated $258,000 yearly for three years for general operating costs of the city government.

Cuts equal to the projected income figure are forecast in city service costs if the levy is defeated.

Flaugh said the most important jobs facing the commission besides financing, are getting rid of crime in the streets and completing projects already underway.

Expansion of Ross field, said Flaugh, should also be one of the top priority items.

Flaugh said he planned on continuing his fight against fast time and the cancellation of further Chesapeake and Ohio railroad service to the city.

Flaugh began his career in city government in 1946 when he was first elected as commissioner. He continued in that position until 1951 when he was elected mayor, a post he held until 1955.

In 1959, he rejoined the commission in the First Ward chair, lost it in 1965, and then came back as commissioner-at-large in 1968. In addition, he served eight years on the state Aeronautics Board and was chairman of the market board.

Flaugh operates the F. Joseph Flaugh Insurance agency. He and his wife Roxy, have two children, Joseph Jr. and Daniel. He is a member and past president of the Benton Harbor Lions club, a member and past exalted ruler of the Benton Harbor Elks; a member of the Benton Harbor IOOF, the Congregational Church and a former member of the Moose.

Merrill, completing his third term, said he would seek a program to improve city streets and parks during the next two years, if the money is provided. He also considers a solution to the problem of the city fruit market a goal for the next term.

Merrill and his wife, Adeline, have four children, Reese, Barbara, and twins Douglas and Debbie. He is currently employed as director of the security division of Scope Employment Service, St. Joseph. He was a Benton Harbor Police officer for 15 years before retiring in 1964.

A veteran of the US Air Force during World War Two, Merrill is a member of the state association of private detectives, the Berrien county Selective Service board, Fraternal Order of Police, and St. John's Catholic church. He is a 1941 graduate of Benton Harbor high school.

Richards, a community service specialist for Lake Michigan college, is making his first bid for elective public office. He was a community school coordinator in the Benton Harbor public school system for two years before joining the LMC staff and was a teacher at Bard school the year before that.

He holds a bachelor of arts degree and a master degree in history from Andrews university, Berrien Springs. He said he has actively worked in Benton Harbor programs since 1965 when he was a university representative to the formation of the Tri-county Community Action Program (Tri-CAP), the agency created to handle the federally financed war on poverty in Berrien, Cass and Van Buren counties.

Richards cited four priorities for the commission in the next two years.

They are community coalition of persons from government, industry, business, education, agencies and citizens to develop community objectives and create the machinery to achieve them. 2) Substantial community assistance to local law enforcement agencies for continuing development in manpower, equipment, training and positive programs in police-community human relations. 3) Support and extend programs such as Tri-CAP and Model Cities designed to aid the poor and enhance community growth. 4) Promote development of a public school system which will be "the best in the state."

Richards' wife, Sandra Jean, is a first grade teacher at Bard school.

He belongs to the NAACP, the National Association of Inter-Group Relations officials; the National community school education association; the Southern Christian Leadership conference (SCLC); the Michigan Welfare League; the Twin Cities Human Relations Council; the Benton Harbor Public Schools Citizens Advisory Committee; the Model Cities Social Services task force and the Tri-CAP governing board. He is treasurer of the Tri-CAP board of directors.

Call For Legalization Of 'Pot'

Grownups, Youth Hold 'Rap' Session At LMC

By SANDRA DRAKE
Staff Writer

Legalize marijuana, abolish dress codes, give us more high school counselors and eliminate grading — these were the solutions given by some 125 teenagers yesterday concerning their biggest problems.

Students went to Lake Michigan college in afternoon-long sessions yesterday to give their answers at the first "What's Bugging Youth" conference sponsored by the youth services committee of the Human Resource Council and LMC.

They met in 10 different "rap" (talk) sessions with adult community leaders to give their views on drugs and narcotics, school discipline, communication gaps in schools and other social and school related problems.

"LISTEN TO US"

"If adults and parents would just take the chance and listen to us once we might get somewhere," said one teenage girl. "We might even be right for once."

C. T. Richards, LMC community services coordinator who was chairman of the conference, told the young people another session would be held in April.

"You probably feel that now, we've talked about it, let's do something. We're having more meetings following your suggestions to try and get action on the problems and solutions," he said.

Listening and probing for the teens answers to their own problems was the role of the 11 adult moderators who represented business, education and governmental agencies.

Young people meeting in the drugs and narcotics session agreed that there should be laws against the harder drugs like heroin but not for marijuana.

"Kids are gonna take it anyway — the laws won't stop them," said one girl. "If a person wants to find an escape they'll do it without the law or with it."

Gene McFadden, moderator, asked the group what they knew about the effects of the drugs.

Youth from St. Joseph schools replied they were shown films on the subject that show drug's effects but the movies don't sway the teens one way or the other. "The films are fairly neutral and I've learned a lot from them. I didn't know anything about drugs before," another teen said.

"Are the films then a deterrent to taking drugs?" asked McFadden.

"Films bring us knowledge but not the urge to try them. In fact, we see so many films on the subject that its old hat now," answered one teen.

Ex-NAACP Leader For 'Stop, Frisk'

Says Rising Crime Must Be Curtailed

Hershel McKenzie, former treasurer for four years of the Benton Harbor branch of NAACP, said today he favors a "stop and frisk" ordinance for Benton Harbor.

"Normally I'd be against this type of legislation," said McKenzie in a statement to this newspaper. "But with the hoodlum element being what it is, we are left no choice. Crime is hurting our city and putting everyone in it in danger. Something has to be done to make the community safe."

"No one wants his freedom curtailed; but neither does anyone want to be shot or killed. I'd rather be patted down by a policeman than shot down by a thug."

OPPOSED BY OTHERS

McKenzie, a 40-year-old Benton Harbor postal employee, said he felt compelled to speak out for a stop and frisk ordinance after four other civil rights leaders, Negroes like him, opposed it at last week's Benton Harbor city commission meeting.

The proposal was withdrawn by City Commissioner Rex Sheeley after opposition developed. But Mayor Wilbert Smith said he will not let it drop. He plans to assign it to a committee for further consideration.

McKenzie said he feels that "uniform adoption of stop and frisk ordinances by all the municipalities in this area would go a long way toward dispelling suspicion of Negro citizens that such legislation is aimed primarily at them."

But he does not feel "stop and frisk" is any crime panacea.

"Our crime rate in Benton Harbor is among the state's highest," he said. "And a great deal of it is being committed by young people. We need to do much more than we are to help prevent crime among youth."

He said that from Oct. 1,

HERSCHEL MCKENZIE

1969, through Feb. 28, 1970, youths committed more than 51 per cent of the crime in Benton Harbor. And records indicate, he added, that 60 per cent of youthful offenders are repeat offenders.

DETENTION HOME

To stem the crime trend, he advocated quick approval of a tri-county detention home for youthful offenders, a project that has been proposed by several area police agencies and endorsed by many civic organizations.

For the long range, he said, more emphasis needs to be placed on parental responsibility.

McKenzie himself is the father of five children and a resident of Benton Harbor for 19 years. In 1968, he was narrowly defeated for the presidency of the Benton Harbor NAACP by Will Branscum, the incumbent.

Stop, Frisk Opposed By NAACP

Local Chapter Endorses View Of President

Benton Harbor's branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) voted unanimously Sunday to support its leadership's opposition to a proposed city "stop and frisk" measure.

Branch Treasurer Mrs. Ethel Young said about 40-50 members endorsed the opposition after hearing a report from Branch President Will Branscum. The group met in the Tri-County Community Action Program (Tri-CAP) commission offices, East Main street.

Mrs. Young said the membership labeled the proposal "unfair," and a step backward for the city. The police have too much power now, she said.

Branscum lodged NAACP opposition with the city commission March 16 and blocked scheduled introduction of the formal proposal.

Mayor Wilbert F. Smith said the proposal would be studied further but delayed assigning the proposal to a specific committee.

Mrs. Gladys Woodard, state NAACP membership chairman, who was guest speaker for the meeting, urged the membership to work to defeat politicians at all levels who do not support black goals for full citizenship.

The speaker also urged local chapters to call on black ministers to preach about the necessity of standing together at this critical time and to quit supporting preachers who refuse to lead in the fight for freedom.

Mrs. Woodard said the situation for blacks as the 1970s began was "looking very bad" in view of moves by the administration of President Nixon.

Mrs. Woodard cited the nomination of two Supreme Court candidates by the Nixon forces as examples. Both men, she said, are unacceptable to black people.

Concerned Boy Praised By Police

The concern of a 12-year-old Herald-Press carrier for one of his customers was commended today by St. Joseph police. It resulted in discovery of the body of Mrs. Amelia Kern, 85, in her apartment at 808 Church street, St. Joseph, late Friday afternoon.

Mark Albers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Albers, 1007 Michigan avenue, noticed that copies of Wednesday and Thursday's papers were still lying on a table in the hallway leading to Mrs. Kern's upstairs apartment.

Concerned over why the papers were still on the table, Mark went upstairs and entered the unlocked apartment where he found Mrs. Kern's body in the bedroom. He then went to a neighbor's house, who called police, according to St. Joseph Patrolman Max Keeschull.

Police said death was due to natural causes.

"Mark should be commended for his actions," Keeschull said. "His concern over why the papers had not been picked up by Mrs. Kern led to the discovery of her body, which may not have been found for some time if the boy hadn't investigated to see what was wrong."

Funeral services for Mrs. Kern were scheduled for this morning at Trinity Lutheran church, with burial slated for Riverview cemetery. She was the widow of Albert Kern, who died in 1920.

Firemen using two Lee township trucks and three from Casco shuttled water nearly quarter a mile from a pond. Darlene

Martin, a daughter, was the only person home when the fire was discovered about 12:30 p.m. She escaped without injury. Firemen said the fire apparently started near the furnace in the basement. No estimate of damage was available. (Tom Renner photo)

Buildings
Proposed
At BangorLawton, Paw Paw
Will Decide
Upon Merger

Six school districts in Berrien and Van Buren counties are holding special elections today. Bangor district residents are voting for the fourth time on a building program. If approved, the $2.75 million program would include the construction of a new elementary building, additions and remodeling of the present elementary and middle schools and additional facilities at the high school.

Overcrowding and lack of adequate facilities have been cited by school officials as the major reasons for approval of the program.

VOTING ON MERGER

Residents of the Paw Paw and Lawton districts are going to the polls to decide whether the schools in the two communities should be merged. It is the third such merger vote involving the two schools in slightly more than a year. The previous two proposals were defeated. The first merger vote also involved Mattawan.

The three other districts, River Valley, Galien and Covert, are voting on millage proposals.

Voters in the River Valley district are being asked to approve the continuation of an 11.8 mill levy for operational monies for three years.

Approval of the proposal would not result in a tax increase, but would renew the levy which expired with the December, 1969 tax collections.

In the Galien township school district, residents are being asked to approve a 17 mill tax levy to provide funds for operation. The proposal represents the renewal of nine mills which expired with the last tax collection and an additional eight mills. School officials say approval of the levy is essential to maintain the current standard of education while meeting operating costs.

NO TAX INCREASE

Covert district residents are voting on one proposal for seven mills for operating funds. The proposal represents the renewal of six mills which expired with the last tax collection and one additional mill. If the proposal is approved, however, taxes in the district will not increase. Board of education members have agreed to drop one mill from the debt retirement levy if the seven mill levy for three years is approved. Approval would keep the total tax rate at 24.68 mills.

Polls in all six districts will remain open until 8 o'clock tonight.

'THE SPOILER' IS SPOILED: A Chicago youth sustained facial cuts and bruises when this new "muscle car" in which he was riding zoomed out of control and rolled down an embankment in Watervliet Saturday afternoon. Watervliet police said David Mende 17, was released after treatment at Watervliet Community hospital. Driver Barry Johnson, 22, told police he made a right turn off Riverside drive onto M-140. He said accelerator stuck and he lost control. Car rolled 25 feet down embankment and struck tree near Paw Paw river and Watervliet Paper Co. mill. Scholarship Funds
Awarded To LMC

The fifth four-year scholarship of $2,000 contributed to Lake Michigan college by the Musselman Foundation of Biglerville, Pa., has been established for the 1970-1971 academic year, it was jointly announced today by Dr. James L. Lehman, LMC president, and J. A. Hauser, president of the foundation.

The scholarship funds are applied to two years of study at LMC and an additional two years at a college or university of the recipient's choice.

According to the scholarship stipulations, controlling criteria for awarding the grant are character, need for financial assistance, and academic ability.

"It is to be noted," said Dr. Lehman, "that this grant represents a total investment by this Foundation of $10,000 to Lake Michigan college students and serves as another example of the cooperation existing between the agricultural-industrial segment of the community and the college."

The Musselman Foundation was established in 1942 by the late Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Musselman, founders of the company which is now the Musselman Fruit Products division of Pet Incorporated. The Musselman division has fruit processing plants in St. Joseph and Paw Paw.

The scholarship terms stipulate that special consideration may be given to applicants who are sons or daughters of employees of the Musselman division, or son or daughters of growers of products processed by the Musselman division.

Recent Musselman Scholarship winners at LMC include Miss Kathy Donoho, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Donoho, of 2103 Hawthorne, St. Joseph, and Miss Jane Butzbach, daughter of Mrs. Mary Lou Butzbach, Route 4, Benton Harbor. Miss Donoho is attending LMC while Miss Butzbach is attending Oakland university.

Other recent Musselman Scholarship winners include Mrs. Bernice Weed, of 169 Ridgeway, Benton Harbor, and George R. Magierka, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Magierka, of Coloma. Both of these winners currently are attending Western Michigan university.

Hart Sets Hearing
On Nuclear Plants

WASHINGTON — By 1973 Lake Michigan will be ringed with nine nuclear power plants, and the heated, radioactive water discharged by those plants could create serious pollution problems. Senator Philip A. Hart (D-Mich., Chairman of the State Environmental subcommittee, said today the subcommittee will probe the extent of that threat at a hearing in Grand Rapids on March 30.

Hart said: "We know that nuclear power plants discharge more heat into a lake than other kinds of power plants and that the outflow from nuclear plants contains radiation."

"We also know that the warmer the water the more oxygen fish need, but the less there is available."

"And we know that while the amount of radiation in a lake may be very small, radiation, like certain pesticides, accumulates and concentrates in fish."

"What we do not know is just what effect the heated, radioactive water discharged from nine nuclear plants will have on Lake Michigan."

"We had better find out before all the plants are built, for it could take a very long time to restore a lake polluted by heat or radiation."

Hart said that representatives of power companies, concerned citizen groups and the state government had been invited to testify.

The hearing will be at 9:30 a.m. in the Black and Silver Room in the Grand Rapids Civic Auditorium.
